1 EST. CLASSROOM DOOR - DAWN, PAST

A clock adjacent to the classroom door reads 8:00am. Sloppily taped onto the single, yellowing window of the fading wooden door is a piece of looseleaf paper.

Hastily scrawled on it are the words:

Home Economics
8:30am to 9:30am

2 INT. CLASSROOM - DAWN, PAST

A YOUNG JAMIE is bent over a waist high table upon which a hot plate is placed. Next to YOUNG JAMIE is a well worn cookbook.

YOUNG JAMIE pokes and prods it excitedly.

His hands find their way to a circular knob. He turns the knob, and the flame of the stove springs to life.

YOUNG JAMIE's smile beams.

3 INT. HALLWAY - DAWN, PAST

A YOUNG SOPHIE wearing a bulky set of headphones yawns and frowns.

She slowly walks down the hallway of the school building. Clearly in no particular rush, she ambles towards the door of the classroom.

Once outside the door, she reaches up to remove her headphones, and catches a glimpse of the analog clock adjacent to the door. It reads 8:25am.

She lowers her hand from her headphones and leans against the wall underneath the clock.

She unclips the Walkman hanging from her backpack. The cassette inside of the Walkman's cassette door clacks.

Her frown finally transforms into a smile as she closes her eyes and immerses herself in her music. Her reverie is rudely interrupted by the ringing of the classroom bell. The frown returns to her face.

She begrudgingly stands, removes her headphones, opens the door and walks into the classroom.

4 EST. CLASSROOM DOOR - DAWN, PAST

The classroom door slowly swings shut behind YOUNG SOPHIE. The movement of the door causes the tape holding the looseleaf paper to lose it's grip, and the paper falls.

Visible through the window are YOUNG SOPHIE and YOUNG JAMIE, now sharing the same table with the hot plate.

5 EST. CLASSROOM DOOR - DAWN, PAST 5

The analog clock adjacent to the classroom door reads 10:30am.

6 INT. CLASSROOM - DAWN, PAST 6

YOUNG SOPHIE begins to stand up from the table, now cleared, which she shared with YOUNG JAMIE. She feels a confident tap on her shoulder.

She turns to see YOUNG JAMIE, smiling.

She looks down to see that in his hands he holds a poorly constructed muffin, and a note scribbled on the corner of a piece of paper which reads:

*for: you
from: future chef, Jamie*

YOUNG SOPHIE chuckles slightly and turns to face away from him. She rummages inside her backpack, finds her notebook, places it on the table out of his view neatly turns to a fresh page, and begins carefully writing something. YOUNG JAMIE cranes his neck try to see.

Finally, she turns around and hands him a piece of paper. It reads, in beautiful handwriting:

My name isn't "you". It's Sophie.

YOUNG JAMIE looks up from the page to see that both YOUNG SOPHIE, and his pitiable muffin have gone. He smiles wryly, and quickly picks up his bookbag to follow her to wherever she's gone, leaving behind the empty table.

MATCH CUT TO:

7 INT. KITCHEN - DAY, PAST 7

YOUNG JAMIE drops a stack of papers onto an empty kitchen table.

The papers scatter erratically, and YOUNG JAMIE rifles through them.

In doing so, he passes by his acceptance letter to culinary trade school, YOUNG SOPHIE's acceptance letter to to musical conservatory, and their high school diplomas.

He finally pulls out from the stack the piece of paper for which he was seemingly searching, and sighs with relief. He makes room on the table by shoving aside the remaining papers, and places the sheet in his hand onto the table. YOUNG SOPHIE, clearly showing her pregnancy, approaches the table, laughing.

She puts her arms around YOUNG JAMIE, and presents him with a pen from her pocket. He writes something on the piece of paper before handing the pen back to YOUNG SOPHIE, now laughing as well. She bends over and also writes on the paper.

They admire their newly signed wedding certificate together.

YOUNG JAMIE wraps his arm around YOUNG SOPHIE's shoulders. YOUNG SOPHIE turns to nuzzle into him, and places her hand on the bottom of his abdomen in an embrace.

A series of abstract lines swirling across the page, crossing and separating, and forming various shapes until it solidifies into a sky.

10 EXT. TRAIN STATION - DAY, PRESENT 10

The sun is high in the sky, drawing all the attention away from the building below.

A rotating train wheel is fixed at the center of the camera and appearing to deaccelerate.

A train slowly chugs up to an empty local train station platform.

The name of the town can be seen fading off of a yellowing sign adjacent to the tracks.

The train stops, and it's doors open.

An OLDER JAMIE steps out and onto the platform. The train doors close, and it chugs away behind him, leaving him alone on the platform.

OLDER JAMIE lays his hand on the town sign gently. He begins to grip the sign tightly, holds his grip for a second, before he relaxes it and removes it from the sign.

OLDER JAMIE begins walking away from the station, and his eyes linger on the sites along the town's main street.

11 EXT. MOVIE THEATER - DAY, PRESENT11

His eyes hold steady on a particular visage in front of the local movie theatre. He sees a HIGH SCHOOL BOY wiping down a display, behind the glass of which is a poster for some movie or another.

OLDER JAMIE fixates on the motion of the HIGH SCHOOL BOY's hand, the circular nature of the motion around the display case. His vision blurs, and he is kicked into a memory of his own.

12 INT. RESTAURANT - DAY, PAST12

YOUNGER JAMIE is hunched over a dining table, watching the circular motion of his hands across the table. Clutched in his hand is a weathered rag. He wipes away at the table, losing himself in the repetitive motion. Regardless of how hard he scrubs, or for how long, his boss chastises and berates him for his supposed laziness.

13 EXT. MOVIE THEATER - DAY, PRESENT13

OLDER JAMIE rubs his eyes. He puts his head in his hands for a moment.

He walks off down the town's main street, passing a historic-looking standing clock.

The name of the town can be seen fading off of a yellowing sign adjacent to the tracks.

OLDER SOPHIE starts walking briskly down the town's main street. Her eyes stay locked ahead of her. She barely even acknowledges the existence of the world around her. She suddenly hears a rattling sound. She looks down to discover a discarded TicTac box, which she had apparently kicked.

She picks up the TicTac box. She turns it over in her hands. And does so once again. Her vision blurs, and she is kicked into a memory of her own.

15 INT. BEDROOM - NIGHT, PAST 15

YOUNGER SOPHIE is shaking a baby rattle in front of the eyes of a BABY. Classical music plays in the background. The BABY begins to frown, and then her eyes begin to water. YOUNGER SOPHIE begins to shake the rattle more and more vigorously, bit by bit, in an attempt to distract the BABY. The baby begins to cry, and doesn't stop, no matter how vigorously YOUNGER SOPHIE shakes the rattle. The classical music and all other ambient noise is slowly drowned out until only the BABY's cries fill the air.

16 EXT. TRAIN STATION - NIGHT, PRESENT 16

OLDER SOPHIE hesitates, and then places the TicTac box in her jacket pocket. She continues down the town's main road.

A cafe in view.

19 INT. CAFE - DAY, PRESENT 19

The cafe's door opens slightly, hitting the chime above it.

OLDER SOPHIE, with signs of a sleepless night painted on her face, takes in the cafe's interior makeup.

The space contains a standard cafe setup: two chairs per round TABLE, distinguishable by either a FLOWER VASE or a COFFEE CUP, large windows on the wall with views of PEOPLE ON BENCHES and BIRDS, and VARIOUS POSTERS of local concerts and events in the city. Several CUSTOMERS sip, eat, and talk in pairs.

OLDER SOPHIE takes a seat, grimaces, and closes her eyes. She takes in a deep breath.

OLDER SOPHIE examines her surroundings and lets her mind wander.

20 INT. BEDROOM - DAY, PAST 20

YOUNGER SOPHIE is on the floor with her daughter (three years old). Both are lying on their stomachs, surrounding a square music toy with buttons along the right side.

YOUNGER SOPHIE runs her finger along the toy's buttons, playing different music notes, much to the disgust of her child. The child cries, regardless of what YOUNGER SOPHIE tries to play. As the child cries, YOUNGER SOPHIE slowly begins to imagine a different reality.

21 INT. FICTITIOUS DJ ROOM, PAST 21

OLDER JAMIE's eyes are closed, but he forces them open at the sound of a plate in the background.

OLDER JAMIE is sitting alone at a table in the cafe, arms folded and feet planted on the ground, concentrating on keeping awake. He looks around the cafe.

The space largely remains the same - there is a COUPLE seated at a nearby table. Through the window glass, he sees a PERSON SMOKING. He clocks the VARIOUS POSTERS of local concerts and events in the city. A CAFE EMPLOYEE mops the floor as the store prepares for closing.

26 INT. FICTITIOUS KITCHEN, PAST 26

OLDER JAMIE opens his eyes, startled by the sound of billard balls knocking against one another.

OLDER JAMIE look around at the few other people at the pool hall, drinking and playing in their own worlds. No one pays attention to him, and he has a table to himself.

OLDER JAMIE looks down at the pool table in front of him. His eyes are distinctively dull.

OLDER JAMIE is holding a racking triangle down on the billards table. He aimlessly chawks the tip of a pool cue, partly to keep his mind busy and partly out of habit. The edges of the camera blur.

31 INT. POOL HALL - EVENING, PAST

The sign, made of a solid wood, reads:
Gillard Park Community Garden

OLDER SOPHIE looks ahead toward the park. She takes in the space around her.

The park is quiet at this time of morning, save for the leaves rustling in the wind and the chatter of birds in the distance. There is a big pond to the left of her with groups of floating LILY PADS. Beyond the pond, there are rows of trees and VARIOUS PLANTS leading to a PICNIC AREA. The side opposite the plants includes a row of BENCHES - one is occupied to a couple talking amongst themselves, and a BIRD is perched on the back of another.
